

The composite laboratory within our university offers education, research and development opportunities on composite materials and structures. Within the scope of "ME 438 Composite Materials", the aims of the composites laboratory are to explain composite materials and structures to students and to provide production and testing opportunities for aircrafts.

